Our Sandemans Story

In 1790 the 25 year old George Sandeman, son of a Scottish cabinet maker with a £300 loan from his father set up in the port and sherry trade in London. His goal was to make a "moderate fortune to retire with" before the centuries end. This man ended up establishing one of the world's great wine businesses. He was the founder of Sandeman.

Today, more than 200 years after George Sandeman's creative impulse, an average of 21 bottles of Sandeman are bought worldwide every minute. Sandeman continues to renew itself and deepening its commitment to combine tradition with the quality and superior class of its wines.

In 1991, English Lakes Hotels Resorts & Venues were close to completion of their new hotel, Lancaster House. All that remained to be decided was a fitting name for the hotel's bar.

Whilst travelling home from a holiday in Jerez, English Lakes Operations Director, Douglas Dale, was sat beside a man whom, after enquiring into Mr Dale's occupation, was very interested to find that Lancaster House was being built only a stone's throw away from the home of a relative. This man was David Sandeman, at the time the Managing Director of Sandeman.

Mr Sandeman was delighted with the idea of naming our bar after his company and graciously accepted the offer to come and open the Sandeman's Bar, and brought with him the posters and Sandeman memorabilia still on display to this day.
